Re: Docket ID ED-2012-OPE-0008

Dear Ms. Macias:

We write to strongly urge you to support a strong gainful employment rule to ensure that career education programs receiving federal funding do not consistently leave students with debts they cannot repay.

Americans for Financial Reform is a coalition of more than 250 national, state and local consumer, labor, investor, civil rights, community, small business, and senior citizen organizations that have come together to spearhead a campaign for real reform in the financial system. And many of our members are concerned about students in career education programs being left with debts they cannot repay.

Since the final gainful employment regulations was issued in June 2011, new information about for-profit college fraudulent conduct, sky high tuitions, and bad student outcomes have reinforced the urgent need for a strong gainful employment rule. While there are some responsible companies providing quality programs, the latest facts, including the comprehensive report from the Senate Health, Education, Labor and Pensions Committee's two year investigation of the for-profit college industry issued last year, show that the problems are egregious and widespread, and certainly not limited to a handful of bad actors.

Across the country, students and former employees have emerged to provide accounts of deceptive marketing, coercive recruiting, false reporting to authorities, poor quality teaching, and illusory job placement efforts.

The effects on students are clear: More than half of the students who enrolled in for-profit colleges in a recent year dropped out within about four months, without a degree or certificate. For-profit colleges have 13 percent of the students, but 47 percent of student loan defaults. Twenty-three percent of their borrowers default on their loans within three years of graduating or dropping out.

Abuses by for-profit colleges imperil your efforts to help Americans successfully train for careers at prices they can afford. These schools have consumed as much as $32 billion in federal financial.

Finally, we also urge you to amend regulations to prevent schools from evading other current laws designed to protect students and taxpayers, such as the laws limiting cohort default rates and the share of revenue that can come from federal student aid.

Sincerely,

Americans for Financial Reform
